EDITOR'S NOTE

IT'S A BIG POKÉMON BRAWL!

Nintendo finally released their highly anticipated Super Smash Bros Brawl game for the Wii and I'm so glad they did. I've been hearing a lot about this game ever since the Nintendo Wii was launched back in 2006. Now that it has arrived I've been able to give it some good play time. Everything in Super Smash Bros Brawl is terrific. Plus, several popular Pokémon make an appearance. The lead Pokémon character is Pikachu and you can also play as a Pokémon Trainer that looks a little like Ash. Throughout the battles you'll encounter Charizard, Squirtle, Skarmory and many others. I was pleasantly surprised with the high quality of this game too. Unfortunately, my best battle character was a not a Pokémon; it was Bowser from Super Mario Bros. That guy can really do some cool spins and jumps! If you're thinking about purchasing this game, check out our complete review inside this issue (P. 14).

Darkrai made its first appearance recently in the new Pokémon movie called The Rise of Darkrai. Cartoon Network aired in back in February and ever since then there's been quite a lot of buzz about this new monster. There are three new trading cards of Darkrai in the new Diamond & Pearl Great Encounters series and many new toys coming out this year, but fans want to know more about it. We've discovered some secrets of Darkrai and some cool news about Darkrai appearing in the Pokémon Diamond and Pearl DS games. If you'd like to find out the mystery behind this new Pitch-Black Pokémon, you'll need to read our special feature inside (P. 19).

Also, have you seen all the cool new toys from JAKKS Pacific? There are dozens of new Pokémon figures, playsets and plush that will be filling up the toy aisles very soon. We have a sneak peek of what you can expect to see. Make sure to check them out (P. 30)!

The bad guy in this movie is named Zero and he controls an artificial intelligence robot named Infi. Zero tries to capture a very powerful flying Pokémon called Giratina so he can rule the world.

Giratina lives in another dimension called the Reverse World. However, this world was recently disrupted by a jolt from the battle between Dialga and Palkia.

Another new Pokémon called Shaymin makes its Pokémon debut. Shaymin finds Ash and the gang by using its telepathic powers and wants to guide them to a garden within the other dimension. Then another new Pokémon, Regigigas, is awoken from inside a glacier where it has been frozen for a long time. The Beckett Ultimate Guide to...

Diglett

The Mole Pokémon gets the spotlight this month!

BY ALEX LUCARD

Diglett, and its evolved form Dugtrio, have always been some of my favorite Pokémon. There was just something about the episode they first appeared in with their cries of "Diglett Dig! Diglett Dig! Trio Trio Trio!" that was so infectiously charming. They were amazingly popular with early Pokémon fans, but over the past decade they seem to be relegated more and more to the shadows. Let's take a look at Diglett and hopefully bring it back to the forefront of your thoughts.

• Diglett is actually the most mysterious Pokémon out there, at least physically. No one has ever seen the full body of a Diglett – only its head. Even Legendary Pokémon like Lugia and Darkrai have been seen fully. At one point, it was very popular for Pokémon fan artists to try and draw what they thought Diglett's body looked like. Diglett fans were excited for Pokémon Battle Revolution because Pokémon actually were shown doing their moves. It was believed if you used Seismic Toss on a Diglett or Dugtrio, you would get to see the full Pokémon body for the first time. Alas, this turned out to be only a rumor. If you use Seismic Toss on either Pokémon in the game, all you see is the Diglett head go into the air.

• Take heart though Diglett fans! In Pokémon Mystery Dungeon, we learn that Diglett indeed have feet. In the third story-based mission you are given, you have to save a little Diglett from Mt. Steel. After you complete your rescue mission of Diglett, it talks about how sore it's feet are. Your friend Magnemite even remarks, "I didn't even know Diglett HAD feet." Perhaps someday we'll get to see a Diglett in its entirety. Maybe as a third evolution, or even a pre-evolutionary form?

• Diglett and Dugtrio are the fastest pure Ground type Pokémon. Diglett, however, has the lowest base Hit Points out of all 386 Pokémon save for Shedinja. This not only makes it hard to catch, but means Diglett is primarily played as a kamikaze attacker until it evolves.

• Diglett's first major role in the anime series came from the Kanto episode, Dig Those Diglett. In this episode, Ash, Misty and Brock come across a very angry construction foreman who is trying to build a large dam. However, the local Diglett keep disrupting his operation. The foreman is so mad he puts up a reward for anyone who can drive the Diglett out of the area. They eventually find out that the building of the dam would destroy a local forest that the Diglett and Dugtrio watch over. Eventually, construction of the dam is halted because of this revelation. Dig Those Diglett is considered one of the most important episodes of the Kanto seasons for many reasons. It is this episode where Ekans and Koffing finally evolve into Arbok and Weezing, where we learn Pokémon can refuse to come out of their Poké Balls, and also where we learn Pokémon can outright refuse to obey their Trainers no matter how close they are with them. This is best demonstrated by the fact that every Pokémon in the episode refuses to do battle with the Diglett, even when their Trainers request it. It's because the Pokémon know the Digletts are the good guys here and that the dam is actually a bad thing. Finally, this is the last episode where voice actor Nathan Price would play Meowth. From here on out he would be replaced by Maddie Blaustein until 2006, when Pokémon USA changed many of the voice actors in the anime.

• Diglett is one of the first Pokémon to appear in the original TCG Base Set. Diglett is cast as a Fighting type Pokémon with 30 Hit Points. The original Diglett has two attacks. The first is Dig, which does 10 damage and requires a single Fighting Energy. With two Fighting Energy cards attached to Diglett, it can use Mud Slap, which does 30 damage. Diglett is resistance to Electrical attacks, but is weak to Ground types. Dugtrio was a decent Pokémon to use in those early days, but with such a low number for its Hit Points, people generally tried to evolve it into Dugtrio as quickly as they could so it could last longer.

• In the video games, Diglett can use the Flying type move Aerial Ace, even though it is a Ground Pokémon and it never emerges from the Earth! How weird is that?

• Diglett's name in Japanese is Digda.

• Diglett makes another appearance in the TCG set, FireRed/LeafGreen. Here Diglett is once again a Fighting type Pokémon, but it has received a boost to its Hit Points. Now Diglett has 50 Hit Points, but it is down to only a single attack called Dig Under, which requires only a single Colorless energy card. Dig Under can affect any of your opponent's Pokémon, even those on the bench. It does only 10 damage, but that damage ignores all weaknesses and resistance. It's a nice whittling down effect, and if you have enough healing items, Diglett can take out just about anything as long as you are fine with the process being quite slow.

• Diglett's trademark move is, of course, Dig. In the first generation of Pokémon games, Dig was amazingly powerful. It had a base power of 100, making it as strong as Earthquake. It was also a two round move. During the first round, the Pokémon went underground and could only be hit by Swift. The next turn the move would come up with a base of 100% accuracy. With Diglett's amazing speed, you found a lot of trainers using Diglett and Dugtrio in Trainer vs. Trainer battles. In the second and third generations of video games, Dig was greatly weakened. Its damage was decreased from 100 to 60, and if a Pokémon using Dig was hit with Earthquake, it would take DOUBLE DAMAGE. This was a pretty controversial move and angered a lot of Dugtrio users when they ported over their Pokémon from Red/Green/Blue/Yellow to Gold/Silver/Crystal. With Diamond & Pearl, the base power of Dig was brought back up to 80, but left with the weakness to Earthquake attacks. Until Ruby/Sapphire, Diglett was the only Pokémon that could learn Dig naturally, so this tinkering with the Dig move has drastically reduced the number of Diglett and Dugtrio you'll encounter in the competitive scene.

• Diglett's physical design is based on the old "Whack a Mole" games that one can find in arcades or places like Chuck E. Cheese's. It in no way resembles a real mole.

• In the TCG set Gym Challenges, Brock is given a Diglett even though he is a Rock gym leader, and Giovanni is the Ground type gym leader. Brock's Diglett is once again a Fighting type card. It has 40 Hit Points and the usual resistance to Electrical attacks, but also a weakness to Grass attacks. This Diglett has two attacks, but sadly both are ones you probably wouldn't ever want to use. The first is Surprise Attack. Surprise Attack involves having a single Fighting energy card on your Diglett and then flipping a coin. If the coin comes up heads, it does 20 damage. If the coin comes up tails, it does no damage at all. The second attack is Tremor. Tremor requires one Colorless energy and one Fighting energy card. It does 40 damage, but then it also does 10 damage to each of your benched Pokémon. This is definitely a version of Diglett to avoid.

• If you want a Diglett for your Pokémon Diamond & Pearl team, then head on over to route 228. You'll only have a 5% chance of encountering one, so good luck! ❖

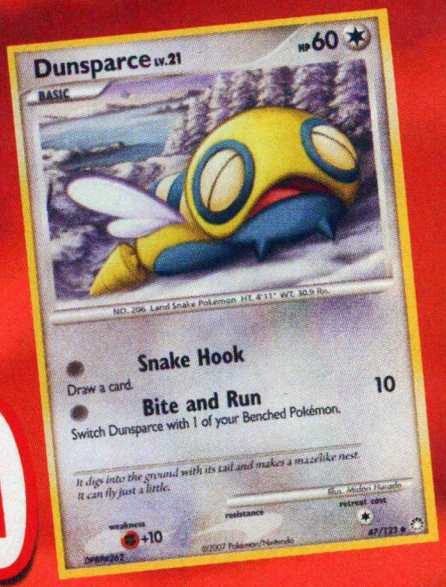
REAL LIFE POKÉMON

DUNSPARCE THE TSUCHINOKO



IS IT REAL OR IS IT FICTIONAL? EVEN ZOOLOGISTS DON'T KNOW FOR CERTAIN!

By Alex Lucard

Every so often there are animals that many people claim they have seen, but whose existence has never been proven. Perhaps they are so rare that they have just never been photographed or perhaps they went extinct by the time scientists came around to try and verify if they were real or not. Regardless, these mysterious animals that just might exist are lumped together under the category of "cryptids." Scientists that try to discover if these animals really exist or not are called crypto zoologists. One of these cryptid animals is called the tsuchinoko, and it's this creature the very rare Pokémon Dunsparce is based on. Let's take a look at this creature that, despite scientific evidence, many Japanese people firmly believe is real.

Because no one has ever photographed or video taped a tsuchinoko, all descriptions and commentary on this creature are, at best, second hand. The tsuchinoko, as it is known in Japanese, has been recorded in art and drawings since 14,000 BCE. The tsuchinoko is also described in the Kojiki, which is the oldest surviving book in the Japanese language.

WHAT DOES A TSUCHINOKO LOOK LIKE?

The tsuchinoko is supposed to be a snake-like animal found all over Japan. According to numerous descriptions, it is between 12 and 31 inches in length and although the tsuchinoko resembles a snake, there are some key differences, such as its body being significantly much wider then the head and is described as having a bulging or ovular mid-body. Tsuchinoko reportedly make a chirping noise rather than the hissing sound snakes are known for.

Some believe that the tsuchinoko is poisonous and some people who claim to have seen them say they have fangs similar to vipers. Vipers have the most unique fangs amongst all snakes; their fangs can rotate back and forth in the snake's mouth. A viper can move each fang ind

Some believe that the tsuchinoko are very poisonous and some people who have "seen" them say they have fangs similar to vipers. Vipers have the most unique fangs amongst all snakes; their fangs can rotate back and forth in the snake's mouth. A viper can move each fang independently and can fold them back when the viper is not using them. If a tsuchinoko were ever to be found, it could possibly be classified as part of the Viper family. Others who have "seen" them disagree with this, saying that they're shy and reserved and would never harm a human because they're scared of them. A few reports even claim that their faces are extremely cute!

A tsuchinoko has other key features that snakes are unable to do. It is reported to move forward in a straight line, rather than wriggle from side to side like you will see snakes do. This movement would be similar to an inchworm or a slinky toy. Some reports from people who claim to have seen a tsuchinoko state that the animal can propel itself up to a meter in the air or can jump forward like a cricket. How this is done is not adequately recorded, but one could surmise that it would be similar to a spring or a coil.

Though never seen, legends state that the tsuchinoko can grab its own tail in its mouth and roll around like a wheel.

This is similar to a legend from the Midwestern United States called the "hoop snake." The hoop snake appeared in tall tales featuring characters like Pecos Bill, and like the tsuchinoko, the hoop snake has reportedly been seen by actual people. In the case of the hoop snake, sightings of this creature have been along the Minnesota/Wisconsin border. Unlike the tsuchinoko, the hoop snake is not considered a cryptid and is instead categorized as a legend. This is for two reasons. The first is that actual sightings of the hoop snake are very rare, unlike the tsuchinoko, which many people even to this day believe are real. The second is that the first recorded oral and written accounts of the hoop snake come from fantasy stories, while the tsuchinoko is recorded in historical texts and documents.

If a tsuchinoko is a real animal, you may be asking yourself why no one has ever been able to record it. Likely it's because... it hasn't happened yet! After all, the coelacanth (a fish that predates the dinosaurs by 200 million years!) was unverified by scientists until 1938, and a second version of the fish was not seen until 1999! Until then, the animal was believed to be extinct. A type of deer called "Truong Son Muntjac" was not found until 1997 in Vietnam. Scientists are always discovering new species or ones we thought were dead or fake, so it is still possible that the tsuchinoko is really out there, just waiting for a scientist with a camera to stumble upon it.

SEEING IS BELIEVING?

If it is not a real animal, then why have so many people claimed that they've seen the creature? Like with most mythological animals, it could simply be people seeing one thing and mistaking it for another. After all, the tsuchinoko could just be a normal snake that ate a large animal, which caused its shape to bulge. If someone walks by and sees the digesting snake sleeping or wriggling by, they might think that it's a tsuchinoko by accident. It's not someone purposely starting a rumor, but an understandable mistake.

As an example, the blue tongued skink looks a lot like how a tsuchinoko is described, except that it has legs. Perhaps people came across a skink sleeping with its legs folded up underneath it and then once again, we have a tsuchinoko sighting. There are many possible explanations for why a person might think they have seen this legendary snake-like creature, when in fact they have actually seen a different animal altogether. A great example of this occurred in 2001, when the Hyogo Prefecture in Japan thought they had found the legendary creature, but it turned out to only be a typical black snake.

Whether or not you believe the tsuchinoko exists is up to you. Much like the Yeti or Loch Ness Monster, there will always be a large group of people who believe it exists; just like there will always be an equally large group of people who claim the creature is a hoax. Even if it is just a legend, without belief in the tsuchinoko, we wouldn't have Dunsparce, so we can always be thankful for that! Much like its real-life counterpart, Dunsparce is exceptionally hard to find in the video games, and it has only appeared in three cartoon episodes within the entire anime. Who knows - if you're not lucky enough to catch a Dunsparce swarm in Pokémon Diamond/Pearl, you might just have a better chance of seeing a tsuchinoko instead! ❖

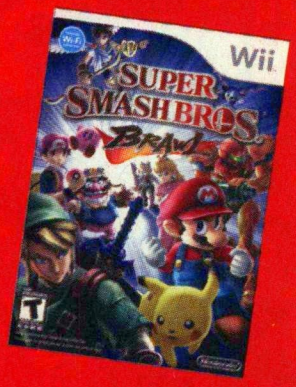
SUPER SMASH BROS.® BRAWL

REVIEW



IS THIS TRULY THE BRAWL TO END ALL BRAWLS?

By Sean Cooper

Ever since the day a Super Smash Bros sequel was announced for the Nintendo Wii, I knew this game was going to be a console-selling game – players were going to buy the Nintendo Wii just to play this game! Whether you're a Pokémon or Mario fan, this is the ultimate Nintendo fanboy's (or fangirl's) dream come true, as you can battle it out between your favorite Nintendo characters all in one game. With all the hype it has received, including one of the best video game websites in history, did Brawl truly live up to the hype or was it a major disappointment?

GRAPHICS

Graphics-wise, Brawl is leaps and bounds better than its Nintendo 64 predecessor, but like most Nintendo Wii games, it's hard to differentiate it from the graphics of the Nintendo GameCube. If you've got a newer television set, you'll be able to take advantage of the 480p and the 16:9 widescreen format, but on an older TV set like mine, it is hard to tell the difference – the 60 frames per second though is a welcomed addition, especially with all the chaos going on on-screen. Overall, the graphics are a slight step up from Smash Bros Melee, but not the quality graphics I expected from a next-gen console like the Wii.

Rating: 3 out of 5 stars

MUSIC

The music in Brawl is the best of the best. Simply put, this is what all video games aspire to be in terms of their music, as the quality is simply unmatched. Like its GameCube sequel, Brawl offers some of the best orchestral video game music in history, all composed by a Nintendo symphony. You can tell Nintendo put a lot of effort into their music, as there are enough songs to keep you entertained for hours (although we could do without that eardrum-bursting Donkey Kong Rap). In terms of Pokémon music, if you're as big of a fan of the Pokémon Diamond & Pearl music as I am, you'll love hearing it in Brawl – it's like having a live orchestra in your home! From the Viridian City theme to the Route 209 theme, all of your favorites are there! Overall, Brawl's music quality is unmatched – you might as well buy it just for its phenomenal soundtrack!

Rating: 5 out of 5 stars

CONTROLS

Whether you're a Smash Bros veteran like myself or you're totally new to the franchise, Brawl offers easy-to-learn controls, while at the same time provides depth for long-time players like myself. Unlike past Smash Bros games, Brawl players have the opportunity to select one of three different control setups: the Wii classic controller, the Nintendo GameCube controller, or the Wii Remote with or without nunchuck. Since I've been playing Smash Bros for nearly a decade, I found it hard to get used to anything besides the GameCube and Wii classic controller. However, for players who want to try out something different or enjoy the uniqueness of the Wiimote, it may be the controller for you. The ability to use different controllers even adds a new level of depth to the game, as you can battle it out with your friends all using different controllers. Overall, the controls are tight, but like many Nintendo Wii games, the Wiimote feels tacked on – the GameCube controller was definitely my controller of choice.

GAMEPLAY

What would Brawl be without characters from Nintendo's top franchises? All of your favorites, from Mario to Donkey Kong, are back! In terms of Pokémon's presence, Pikachu is back, while Pichu and Mewtwo from Melee are given the boot, which I didn't have a problem with since Pichu was too similar to Pikachu and Mewtwo was a clone of Ganondorf. Fellow Pokémon fans don't need to worry though as there are two new playable Pokémon characters: Pokémon Trainer and Lucario. I enjoyed playing as Pokémon Trainer because he is one of the most unique characters in the game. Unlike most characters, you don't actually battle as Pokémon Trainer; instead you control his three Pokémon in Squirtle, Ivysaur and Charizard. Meanwhile, Lucario is an unlockable character like Mewtwo with a unique final smash known as Aura Storm, which involves Lucario unleashing a powerful blast towards his opponents. Overall, I'm happy with the Pokémon cast in Brawl over Melee, but I'm disappointed that characters always have to be removed each game.

In terms of stages to duke it out with your friends, many new and unique stages have been added, such as the PictoChat and WarioWare stages, and many classic stages make their return. For Pokémon fans like myself, the Pokémon Stadium stage from Melee makes a return, while two new stages are added: Pokémon Stadium 2 and Spear Pillar. Pokémon Stadium is a decent stage where the battleground constantly changes. Meanwhile, similar to Pokémon Stadium, the Pokémon Stadium 2 stage has the added bonus of changing into different Pokémon types. For example, when the stage switches to the Ice-type, the ground becomes slippery, while when the stage becomes the Flying-type the gravity is reduced. Lastly, Spear Pillar, an unlockable stage, features the starring legendary Pokémon from Pokémon Diamond & Pearl, Dialga and Palkia. I enjoyed this stage a lot because Dialga and Palkia would randomly appear and cause havoc for players, such as blasting a beam of power from the sky that would decimate any character in its path. In the end, I love all the stages in Brawl, especially the Pokémon-based stages.

As always, Brawl offers players a slew of items to attack their opponents with. The Smash Ball is definitely my favorite addition, as it allows the player who breaks it first the ability to perform their final smash. For Pokémon-based items, Poké Balls play a major role in the game since you'll never know what Pokémon will emerge. It could be a useless Pokémon like Goldeen or one of the new additions like Deoxys. The Poké Ball is by far my favorite returning item and it can easily turn the tide of any tight battle.

One of the main selling points of Brawl is that for the first time, players are able to battle it out online with their friends through Nintendo Wi-Fi Connection (WFC). I'm not going to take too much time bashing the archaic Friend Code system, but it really hampers the online experience if you don't have any friends to battle. I must admit that I really enjoyed battling my friends online for the first time ever – it is a lot more enjoyable being able to lay the smack down on someone I knew. Being able to battle random players is also nice, although it would have been nice to be able to exchange Friend Codes with them – without that ability it feels like battling the computer. Overall, I found online play very robust without much lag, although apparently Nintendo needs to iron out their online play as a lot of players are complaining about receiving error messages. Nevertheless, awesome job Nintendo!

SUPER SMASH BROS. BRAWL REVIEW

While the multiplayer modes offer some of the most intuitive gameplay out there, the single player mode leaves much to be desired. Instead of trumpeting the new single player mode known as the Subspace Emissary as the next big thing, I would have hid it on the back of the game box under "and more." I think the following phrase pretty much sums up how I feel about this mode: fighting characters do not belong in action side-scroller games! Like the single player mode in Melee where you went through different levels, such as the Super Mario level, at first the Subspace Emissary levels are fun (especially battling the second boss, legendary Pokémon Rayquaza), but after playing through the same levels over and over again the mode gets old quickly. I find the game more frustrating than fun as it's really hard to jump with certain characters, while others like Kirby can simply fly around with ease. However, I did enjoy the entertaining cut scenes, so I have to give the creators props for that.

Rating: 5 out of 5 stars

FINAL SCORE

To answer my question at the beginning – yes, Super Smash Bros Brawl lives up to the hype and then some! Even with some of the shortcomings in the single player mode, multiplayer more than makes up for it. In my opinion, this is the best game so far released for the Nintendo Wii because it's easy to learn, but hard to master. It's also great for fans of Nintendo franchises because it gives you to opportunity to battle against heroes and villains from various games. Brawl also features a slew of Pokémon content and is the better buy compared to the lackluster Pokémon Battle Revolution. If you don't own a Nintendo Wii yet, what are you waiting for? And if you own a Nintendo Wii, you must own this game (if you don't already) because it could easily be the game of the year!

With the recent airing of the 10th Pokémon movie, The Rise of Darkrai, on Cartoon Network this past February, I thought it would be an opportune time to unveil the mysteries that surround the Dark-type Pokémon Darkrai. Hopefully by the end of this article you'll have more of an idea of how powerful this legendary Pokémon truly is.

THE RISE OF DARKRAI

Considering that The Rise of Darkrai grossed the third largest box office sales in Japanese theaters for a Pokémon movie, I was expecting it to be a stellar Pokémon movie and I wasn't disappointed. In case you missed the movie, I'll give you a basic plot summary. In Alamos Town, some believe Darkrai is randomly destroying things around the town. It turns out that Dialga and Palkia are really to blame and Darkrai is actually trying to stop them. In the end, Ash and crew band together to stop the two destructive Pokémon, as Darkrai sacrifices itself in the process. The Rise of Darkrai comes out on DVD on May 27, 2008, in case you missed its original airing on Cartoon Network.

With The Rise of Darkrai being the 10th Pokémon movie, it's hard to come up with original plots for Pokémon movies after nine previous films. That being said, this was definitely my favorite movie since Destiny Deoxys. First of all, like all previous Pokémon movies, it has an amazing setting – based on the beautiful cities in Spain, Alamos Town was absolutely breathtaking. It also had an amazing soundtrack with orchestral music that I was still humming days after hearing it. Regarding the plot, I liked how at the beginning of the film it was a mystery if Darkrai was responsible for the damage or not (even if it's been done many times in the TV series). As with all Pokémon movies, the battle scenes were superb – it was fantastic seeing powerful attacks like Roar of Time and Dark Pulse from the legendary Pokémon. We even got to see an epic battle between three legendary Pokémon (Dialga, Palkia and Darkrai), even if we never found out why they were fighting in the first place.

Probably the best part of the movie is that it wasn't entirely focused on Ash saving the day like most Pokémon movies. I remember in the second movie, Pokémon: the Movie 2000, Tracey only had like two lines in the entire film! At least all of the supporting characters like Dawn and Brock got into the action – Croagunk even helped out by absorbing an attack from Dialga! As always we learn a valuable lesson at the end of the movie that prejudice is wrong; this is always a positive message to promote.

Overall, I thought the movie was pretty decent, although I didn't like the ending – I would have liked to see the battle end in a way besides playing a song. The film also cut to the credits too quickly. That being said, I like how Dialga, Palkia and Darkrai are still out there, which sets up the plot perfectly for the 11th Pokémon movie. In the end it's a great movie and you should definitely make sure you see it if you missed its first airing.

PITCH-BLACK POKÉMON

With the many legendary Pokémon that exist in the Pokémon Diamond & Pearl games, Darkrai stands out as my favorite, probably because it's so mysterious. As its name implies, Darkrai is an evil Pokémon that enters the dreams of others in order to give them nightmares that last for an eternity. In an ominous sort of way, Darkrai is most active when a full moon is present. When it isn't causing nightmares, Darkrai can be found on Newmoon Island. The etymology of Darkrai's name is "dark" and "rai," which means dark in Japanese.

GAMES & BATTLES

Although available in Japan through a Nintendo Event, there is currently no way to acquire Darkrai in the Pokémon Diamond & Pearl games in North America. With the recent airing of The Rise of Darkrai in America, an official

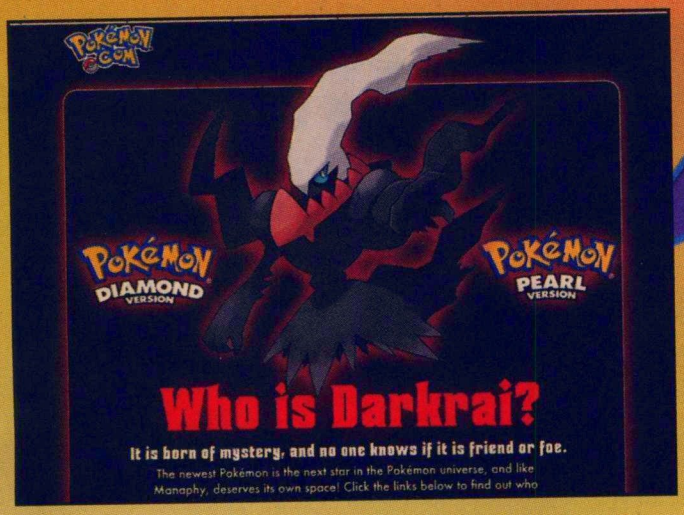
The NIGHTMARE POKÉMON



Pokémon Diamond Version
Pokémon Pearl Version
Who is Darkrai?
It is born of mystery, and no one knows if it is friend or foe.
The newest Pokémon is the next star in the Pokémon universe, and like Manaphy, deserves its own space! Click the links below to find out who Darkrai website (http://www.darkrai.com) was opened.

Keep checking back as it will eventually reveal how to acquire Darkrai in the Pokémon Diamond & Pearl games.

Interestingly enough, there was actually a glitch in Japan that allowed players to obtain Darkrai in their games; of course that glitch was fixed before the game was released in America. The only legitimate way to acquire Darkrai is by acquiring the Member's Card (available only through a Nintendo Event) and traveling to Newmoon Island to encounter Darkrai at Level 40.

An interesting fact is that Darkrai was originally scheduled to be in Super Smash Bros Brawl – it emerged from a Poké Ball at a demo for the game earlier this year in Japan. Sadly it didn't make the final cut.

In terms of battle strategy, Darkrai has a distinct advantage against other legendary Pokémon because it's a Dark-type Pokémon – it's strong against Psychic-type legendaries like Mewtwo and Lugia. In terms of power, if you thought legendary Pokémon like Mewtwo were powerhouses, you haven't seen anything yet! Simply put, Darkrai is a devastating Pokémon. At first glance it may not seem powerful – it has high special attack and speed, but its other stats are average – but its power lies in its trademark move, Dark Void. With Darkrai's base speed of 125, it can outrun most Pokémon and put them to sleep 80% of the time with Dark Void. However, that's not all; when your opponent is asleep, Darkrai's ability known as Bad Dreams takes effect, which reduces their HP by 1/8 each turn.

In terms of movesets for Darkrai, Dark Pulse is its more reliable attack – besides being a special attack and getting the boost of 1.5 times for it being the same type, Dark Pulse has a base damage of 80, is 100% accurate and may cause flinching. As mentioned above, Dark Void is a helpful attack due to Darkrai's superior speed – it can help you sweep an entire team. Don't bother teaching it Dream Eater since your opponent can easily switch out, causing the move to miss. For its other attacks the choice is yours. Since Darkrai has a high special attack, I would recommend Thunderbolt and Ice Beam as both moves cover a wide variety of Pokémon weaknesses. Overall, Darkrai is a devastating Pokémon with the power to take out an entire team with the right moveset and strategy.

TRADING CARD GAME

The Great Encounters set introduces Darkrai to the trading card game with three cards. Starting with the LV. X Darkrai, at first glance it has 100 HP, resistance of –20 to Psychic and a retreat cost of only one energy card, which are all decent. However, Darkrai's real power lies in its Poké-Body, Dark Shadow. The only problem is that you must level up from a regular Darkrai in order to get to its LV. X format. Its only attack Endless Darkness is decent, but difficult to execute since it requires three energy cards. That, coupled with Darkrai's 100 HP, means it will be difficult to use the attack without Darkrai being knocked out. Overall, this is a decent card, but I wouldn't recommend it unless you want to challenge yourself since there are better LV. X cards out there.

As mentioned, there are two other Darkrai cards: LV. 38 Darkrai and LV. 40 Darkrai. I'd recommend LV. 40 Darkrai over LV. 38 Darkrai because its attacks are better. LV. 40 Darkrai also has a distinct advantage when coupled with LV. X Darkrai with its Sleep Hole attack. Sleep Hole is an attack that causes 40 base damage plus an extra 40 damage if the defending Pokémon is asleep; if they're not asleep then they are now. Overall, I would recommend this card due to its potential to do some serious damage.

THE MYSTERY HAS BEEN REVEALED

Hopefully you now know a lot more about the mysterious shadow Pokémon known as Darkrai. At first glance it may seem like a truly sinister Pokémon, but as The Rise of Darkrai shows us, every Pokémon has some good in them. Keep an eye out because Darkrai should be available to download to your Pokémon Diamond & Pearl games in the near future, where you can truly harness the power of this Pitch-Black Pokémon!❖

Secrets of Evolution

Great Encounters Part 2

You'll love encountering these new Pokémon! By Michael Lucas

Welcome back, Trainers! This time I've got a special treat for you – we'll be reviewing FOUR new Pokémon cards instead of the standard three this issue! There were too many great choices, including one with an effect so powerful your opponent won't even have a chance to fight back. Let's get to these new Pokémon!

Blaziken Lv. 56 (#1/106): Getting your team fired up!

Fire Dance 30
Search your discard pile for a Fire Energy card and attach it to 1 of your Pokémon.
Flame Kick
Discard 2 Fire Energy attached to Blaziken. This attack does 80 damage to 1 of your opponent's Pokémon. (Don't apply Weakness and Resistance for Benched Pokémon.)

+30

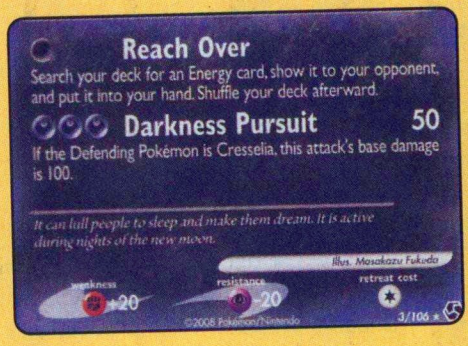
Fire types have always been about throwing extra Fire energy cards onto the table whenever possible. Blaziken's no exception; Fire Dance not only does a respectable 30 damage for one energy card, but throws a Fire energy card from the discard onto any Pokémon of your choosing. Flame Kick puts some energy back into the discard, but 80 damage to any of your opponent's Pokémon will usually let you pick off a weakling hiding on the bench. It may not be your biggest hitter, but it'll set you up for an attack that'll come sooner than your opponent will be prepared for! If you're playing a serious Fire type deck, you should check this one out.

Darkrai Lv. 38 (#3/106): Reach for the stars



Reach Over
Search your deck for an Energy card, show it to your opponent, and put it into your hand. Shuffle your deck afterward.
Darkness Pursuit 50
If the Defending Pokémon is Cresselia, this attack's base damage is 100.

It's very rare in the Pokémon TCG to find a Pokémon that can be thrown into almost any deck without penalty. For decks requiring Special energy cards, Darkrai is an absolute miracle. Without any cost at all, Reach Over can fetch any type of energy you need out of your deck. Those double and triple energy cards (like Boost Energy and Double Rainbow Energy) usually need to be drawn, but Darkrai lets you set yourself up very early. You may never get to use Darkness Pursuit, but with any luck you won't need to. If you've ever had trouble getting to that last non-basic Energy card to power up your Pokémon for the big attack, Darkrai should make its way into your new deck!

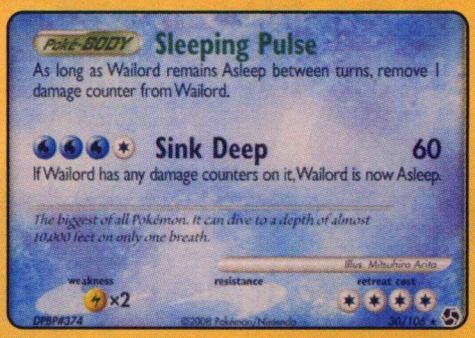
Wailord Lv. 43 (#30/106): The great wall



Poké-BODY Sleeping Pulse
As long as Wailord remains Asleep between turns, remove 1 damage counter from Wailord.
Sink Deep 60
If Wailord has any damage counters on it, Wailord is now Asleep.

Poké-BODY Sleeping Pulse
As long as Wailord remains Asleep between turns, remove 1 damage counter from Wailord.
Sink Deep 60
If Wailord has any damage counters on it, Wailord is now Asleep.

Sometimes, you just need a couple more turns to get things together. Wailord can easily help a Trainer out with that with his whopping 200 HP. An opponent will usually have to attack for several turns to get through that, and if you're lucky enough to be able to attack with him, his Sleeping Pulse power will heal him slowly but surely. Combine that with the new Leftovers Trainer card, and unless your opponent is hitting for massive damage every turn, they'll be unable to knock out your Wailord. Try him out if you need extra time to set up a strategy in a Water deck!

Dialga Lv. X (#105/106): Master of time

Poké-POWER Time Skip
Once during your turn (before your attack), you may have your opponent flip 2 coins. If both of them are heads, your turn ends. If both of them are tails, after your opponent draws a card at the beginning of his or her next turn, his or her turn ends. This power can't be used if Dialga is affected by a Special Condition.
Metal Flash 80
Put this card onto your Active Dialga (Dialga LV.X or more) any Attack, Poké-Power, or Poké-Body from its previous level.
Illus. Ryo Ueda

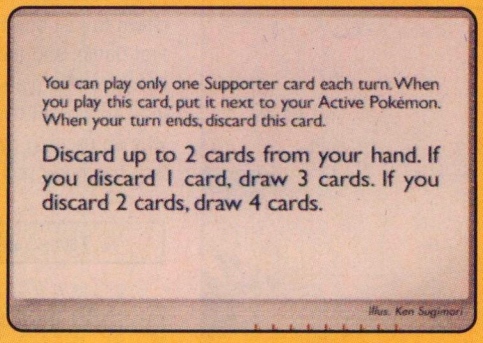
105/106

Dialga Lv. X, if you've got coin flipping mastered, is absolutely amazing. Time Skip gives you a one in four chance to completely skip an opponent's turn! This leaves your opponent helpless against your onslaught of attacks, especially with Metal Flash doing 80 a turn. There's also the chance you could end your turn early, but if Time Skip is the last thing you do before you'd otherwise attack, you should be pretty well set even if you miss once in a while. If you're constantly flipping tails with those coins, this could be just the card you need to take down your next event!

Trainer Corner (#98/106): Felicity's Drawing



You can play only one Supporter card each turn. When you play this card, put it next to your Active Pokémon. When your turn ends, discard this card.
Discard up to 2 cards from your hand. If you discard 1 card, draw 3 cards. If you discard 2 cards, draw 4 cards.
Illus. Ken Sugimori

SUPPORTER

Felicity's Drawing
You can play only one Supporter card each turn. When you play this card, put it next to your Active Pokémon. When your turn ends, discard this card.
Discard up to 2 cards from your hand. If you discard 1 card, draw 3 cards. If you discard 2 cards, draw 4 cards.

Felicity's Drawing gives Trainers the ability to do something they haven't been able to do reliably for a while – put specific cards from their hand into the discard pile. Discarding two cards to draw four may not seem all that great, but if you have a Pokémon like Blaziken, which need certain cards in the discard to work at its best, you'll benefit from the draw-power this card can provide. Try it out if you have any Pokémon that fetch things from your discard pile!

That's it for this issue, Trainers! Next month, we'll be back with one last look at Great Encounters and a few more diamonds in the rough that'll surely help out one of your decks. Until next time, play hard and play fair!

ASH HAS A REMATCH

WILL ASH BE THE VICTOR THIS TIME AGAINST ROARK?

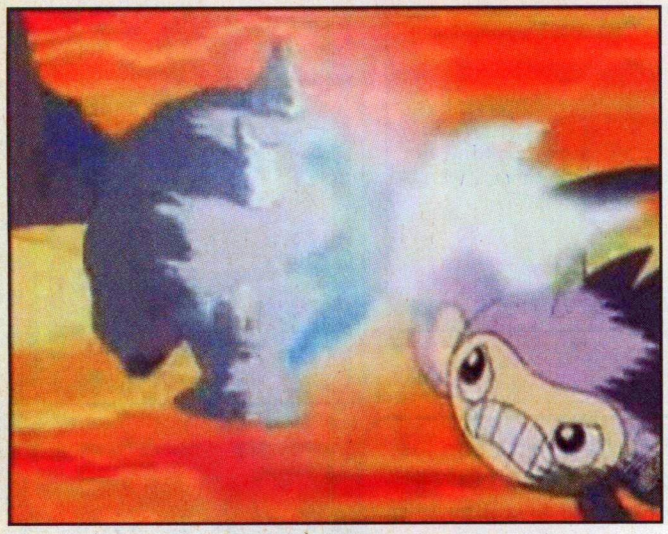
This month a new villain is introduced who makes Lawrence III from Pokémon: The Movie 2000 look pale in comparison in terms of gadgets.

Meanwhile, after a crushing defeat at the hands of Roark, will Ash be able to rise to the occasion and obtain his first Sinnoh League badge? Keep reading to find out!

Episode #483: Wild in the Streets!
Events: Roark's Cranidos evolves into Rampardos.

Review: After Ash's tragic loss to Roark in the previous episode's gym battle, I thought this episode did a good job with following it up. My only gripe was that I couldn't help but feel like the writers were recycling storylines; didn't we get an episode about an out-of-control Aerodactyl in the first season? Nevertheless, this was an action-packed episode that culminated the Team Rocket story arc with them being responsible for bringing the prehistoric Pokémon back to life – it was nice to see a storyline that lasts more than one episode. The episode also served its purpose by allowing Roark's Cranidos to evolve into a Rampardos – I can't wait for the rematch to take place next episode! It was great how Ash's fighting spirit really shined through when he chose Roark's most powerful Pokémon to battle. Overall, this was a great episode, especially if you're a fan of Rock-type Pokémon.

Rating: 3 out of 5 stars



Episode #484: O'er the Rampardos We Watched!
Events: Ash defeats Roark in his rematch to earn his first Sinnoh badge.

Review: This was probably the longest gym battle story arc of the series and with that being said, I thought the writers did a phenomenal job at making this one of the most exciting gym battles in recent memory. I know some people may say that it's anticlimactic for Ash to defeat the Pokémon that he couldn't take out last time, on the first try, but it showed that he had learned from his loss just a couple days ago. I also liked how Ash took out both of Roark's Pokémon and had him down to just one Pokémon, his newly evolved Rampardos, like in the first battle, and the writers hinted that Ash could be swept away like before. I was glad that Pikachu didn't come to the rescue as usual; instead we got to see Ash's Turtwig play the role of hero. Overall, this was an exciting gym battle episode that really showed you how much Ash has improved as a trainer.

Rating: 5 out of 5 stars

Episode #485: Twice Smitten, Once Shy!
Events: Dawn catches, releases and re-catches a Pachirisu.

Review: Wow, I'm impressed! In so few episodes into the Sinnoh season, so many events have happened! It seems like an important event happens every episode. It sure beats the Johto season where we could go episodes without any important events happening.

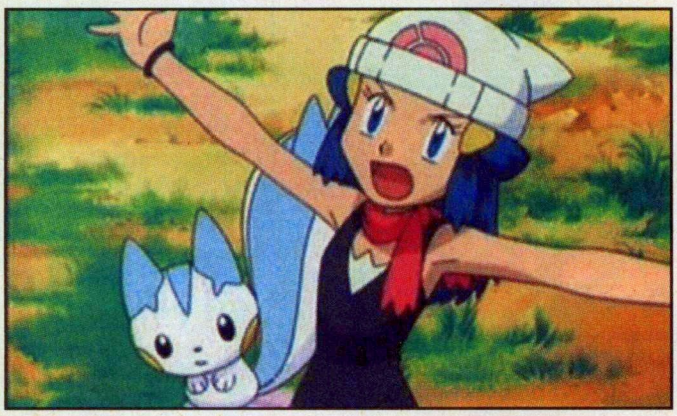
FOR THE COAL BADGE

By Sean Cooper

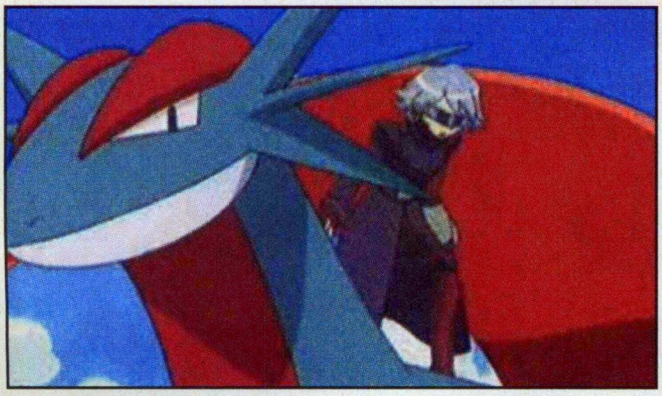


I really liked this episode because the writers tried something new. Instead of Dawn simply catching her next Pokémon, she caught it, but decided to release it because it was acting crazy… like squirrels do. I couldn't help but chuckle at the fact that the voice actors had no idea how to pronounce Pachirisu's name. I know it's a Japanese name, but at least be consistent with its pronunciation! It was strange to see Team Rocket actually try to legitimately catch a Pokémon, but as usual they resorted to their cheating ways. In the end I was glad that Dawn decided to keep Pachirisu – I'm sure we'll be seeing a lot of it in the upcoming Pokémon Contest episodes!

Rating: 3 out of 5 stars

Episode #486: Mutiny in the Bounty!
Events: J, a Pokémon hunter, captures Pikachu and Meowth.

Review: Finally, a Pokémon villain that is an actual threat who isn't used for comic relief! The streak of great episodes continues, as this episode is no exception. Ash and Team Rocket were forced to work together, which has been done before, but it was nice seeing Team Rocket actually help instead of waiting for an opportune moment to backstab Ash and steal Pikachu. I really liked Pokémon hunter J because of her unique ability to turn Pokémon into stone and her various gadgets, including a flying hideout. The only disappointing part was that this episode could have really been stretched out into two parts instead of rushed in only one. The most hilarious moment was at the end when Team Rocket snuck away thinking that Officer Jenny wanted to arrest them. If you're a fan of J then you won't be disappointed as she appears later on in the season.



Rating: 5 out of 5 stars

Episode #487: Ya See We Want an Evolution!
Events: Dawn's Piplup loses to Magikarp, while Ash's Pikachu battles to a draw with Feebas.

Review: If there was ever a useless filler episode, this was it! I could appreciate the writers trying to incorporate the games more into the anime, but this episode went too far. I found the subtle references to the games interesting, such as the B-Button League, being in homage to when you click the B button to cancel an evolution, but I just didn't find this episode entertaining. Meowth had a good line though when he pressed what looked to be a Nintendo Wii remote and said "whee." It was also hilarious how Team Rocket called themselves the C-Button League. The bottom line is that I just didn't think that the two most useless Pokémon in the games, Magikarp and Feebas, deserved an episode of their own; it's just a waste of time. However, at least the writers explained why it's helpful to not have your Pokémon evolve (because they'll learn new moves), so I have to give them props for that. ❖

Rating: 2 out of 5 stars

Will Ash battle for his next badge in the Sinnoh League soon? Check back next month to find out!

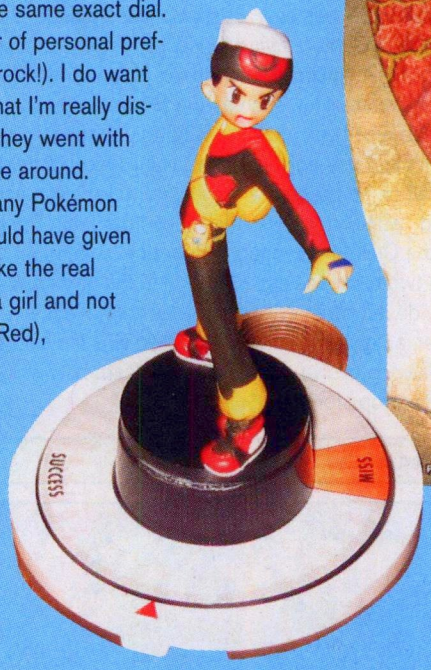
A Look at the Groundbreakers Whirlwind Starter Figures

By Alex Lucard

The Groundbreakers expansion set is out. Hopefully you've gotten your hands on a few of the figures. This month we'll be taking a look at the Whirlwind starters and the pieces contained within. The starters play VERY differently from the original Next Quest sets, so it's imperative that you know the pieces whether you play them, or more importantly, if someone plays them against you.

First up is the Trainer figure, Landon. Landon is a repaint of old Brandon. In fact, I've included a picture of both Brandon and Landon together just to show you the different paint schemes. Like all trainers, there's no difference between the figures. They all have the same exact dial. It's just a matter of personal preference (I use Brock!). I do want to again state that I'm really disappointed that they went with repaints this time around. There are so many Pokémon trainers they could have given us as sculpts, like the real Green (who is a girl and not a clone of Ash/Red), Gary Oak/Blue or many others. I do admit I like Landon's color scheme better than Brandon though, so there's at least one positive thing here.



Something odd about this trainer set is that instead of having one Pokémon for each move point level (one of each - one MP, two MPs and three MPs), Whirlwind comes with two Pokémon that have two MPs and one with three MPs. This means that this Whirlwind starter has an automatic tactical advantage over the Next Quest starters.

GEODUDE

You'll notice something a bit odd about him in that he has two Move Points. Geodude has never been a fast Pokémon, and it might have been meant to be the one MP Pokémon in the set. However, the dial says two; until a corrected version comes out, use this to your full advantage.

I have to say that Geodude is probably the best figure in the set. It has a very small orange Miss space on its dial, but it equates out to only 8.4% of its dial. The rest of the dial is sheer offense. 25% of its dial is taken up by the move Rock Throw. Rock Throw does 40 damage, which is a decent amount of damage. A lot of Pokémon with two MPs generally have a stronger attack than this though.

Geodude's second attack is about 41% of its dial and it is called Rollout. Like Charizard's Fire Spin, if you land on Rollout, you get to keep spinning Geodude's dial and adding up the Rollout damage every time you land on this spot. As it is nearly half that dial, this will happen far more than your opponent would like. When you finally land on something else, total up that damage and hopefully it will be more than your opponent can handle. With Rollout, Geodude can knock out any other Pokémon in the game, if its lucky.

The remainder of the dial is a purple move. Remember that purple moves take precedent over all other moves except Dodge. Geodude's purple move is Self-Destruct. If Geodude lands on this, both it and the opposing Pokémon are knocked out.

Now, you may be wondering why on Earth you would want this. After all, it defeats one of your own Pokémon as well. But here's the trick: play Geodude strictly as a defensive Pokémon, keep it near your base and use it to attack any Pokémon that comes close to it. If Geodude hits the Self-Destruct, then your opponent's Pokémon is knocked out and has to start back on the other side of the board. Your Geodude however will come back out right where you need it most – near your home base, ready to protect it again. Even better, with Rollout, Geodude just might knock out your opponent and remain standing, giving you another turn to threaten your opponent with this two-pronged dial of doom! Just keep it close to home and Geodude will be indispensable.

MIGHTYENA

Mightyena is the next Pokémon in the set. It's another two MP Pokémon who is more of a direct attacker. Like Geodude, it has a small orange Miss section on its dial. Mightyena also boasts two normal attacks and a purple move. Bite takes up a third of the dial and does 40 damage. It's a large move, but 40 damage is only an average amount, so more often than not, if Mightyena lands on this, other one or two MP Pokémon will knock it out.

Mightyena's second attack is Crunch. This move is a little more than a quarter of the dial and does 50 damage. It's a little better, but it still means that for straight damage, Mightyena lacks any real punch compared to the rest of the two MP Pokémon.

The purple move Taunt takes up the last third of Mightyena's Dial. If the dial lands on Taunt, both Mightyena and the opponent must spin their dials again. They must keep spinning until they get a non-purple move. This means that the battle will either be decided by straight damage or a blue Dodge. Although this is a neat little idea on the dial, more often than not, Taunt hurts Mightyena. Because both of its attacks are a little on the low side, the only real Pokémon it's going to be able to knock out are most of the three MP Pokémon. Almost everything else does more damage that Mightyena, so Taunt is rather wasted on its dial. This makes Mightyena the weak link of the Whirlwind set, and one I personally would rarely field unless your opponent plays weak but fast Pokémon. Also take note that Mightyena is a pretty fragile figure and looks like it could break of his base very easily.

LATIAS

The final figure in the Whirlwind starter set is the Legendary Pokémon, Latias. Latias is a figure that completely turns the game on its head. It has three MPs, which until now has been balanced by very weak moves. It's not the case here though, as Latias is not only the fastest Pokémon in the starter, but he actually does the most damage!

Half of Latias' dial is the move Psychic, which does 50 damage. This single move makes him the strongest three MP Pokémon we've ever looked at. Heck, with Psychic, Latias can take out either of his teammates! What's even better is that it's not even his strongest move. That is his other attack, Mist Ball. Mist Ball takes up a third of Latias' dial and it does 70 Damage. This is amazing for a three MP Pokémon, and is quite good for even a two MP Pokémon. It's strong enough to even takeout some of the one MP beat stick Pokémon.

As you might imagine, at first glance Latias is entirely unbalanced. Sure, Latias isn't strong enough to take, say, a Lugia's Aeroblast, but he's powerful and super fast. Why wouldn't someone wield an entire team of it? Well, there are two reasons. The first is that Latias has two small Miss spaces on his dial. Both add up to about 17% of his dial, meaning there is nearly a one in five chance Latias will not hit. The bigger flaw is with Latias' Pokémon Power. Around the inside of his dial you'll see a yellow ring that says "Mirage." Mirage states that if Latias is knocked out, he is removed from the game ENTIRELY. This means that unlike other knocked out Pokémon, Latias can never come back, leaving you with a permanent 5-6 or 2-3 handicap. If you're fielding Latias and he gets knocked out, your opponent now has a strategic advantage you may never recover from.

Now the question comes down to whether or not Latias is worth fielding at all. If you're an offensive player, the answer is, "Probably not." More than likely you will lose Latias if you make a bum rush for the goal. If you're a defensive player, Latias is amazing. Use him to chase after and knock out your opponent's fastest Pokémon; the other three MP Pokémon can't even begin to compete with Latias, making it a guaranteed win for you. You can use him in conjunction with a beat stick; have your strong but slow Pokémon clear a path towards the goal and then send Latias in with its amazing speed to score a win.

Finally there's a lesser though-of strategy you can use Latias with: use Latias and other fast Pokémon to surround one of your opponent's. Remember, if at any time a Pokémon is surrounded by enemies, it is automatically knocked out – no battle required. Latias' speed makes this even easier to accomplish. Just remember to only bring Latias into battles you know you can win and play it as a sniper, and it'll be worth fielding. Otherwise, keep him off the board because very few TFG players can recover from a permanent Pokémon loss.

This has been our first look at the Groundbreakers pieces. Hopefully you are excited about seeing other new pieces in the months to come. This first expansion for the Pokémon TFG has some very odd and interesting pieces that will no doubt really change how the game is played. I'll see you next month with a look at the other Groundbreakers starter pack.

HOW TO USE

What's Listed
Products listed in the Price Guide typically: 1) are produced by licensed manufacturers, 2) are widely available and 3) have market activity on single items.

What the Columns Mean
The LO and HI columns reflect current retail selling ranges. The HI column on the right generally represents the full retail selling price. The LO column on the left generally represents the lowest price one would expect to find with extensive shopping.

What the Arrows Mean
Up arrows denote prices that went up since the last issue. Down arrows denote prices that went down since the last issue. Arrows don't mean a card or set is "going up" or "going down."

Grading
All cards in the Price Guide are based on NrMint to Mint condition. Damaged cards are generally sold for 25 to 75 percent of Mint value. Toy prices are based on mint condition. Toys that are loose (out of package), are generally sold for 50 percent of the listed price.

Currency
This Price Guide is intended to reflect the entire North American market. All listed prices are in U.S. dollars.

Win cards and other cool prizes at Yu-Gi-Oh! Leagues and Tournaments

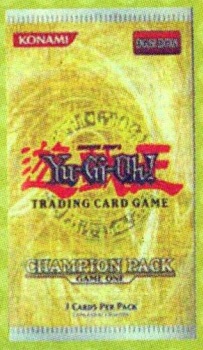
By Michelle Stewart

By now you've probably collected some cards, maybe built a deck or two, or tried Dueling with your friends. It's probably been a lot of fun — so what's next?

Well, why not take that deck and those friends and check out some new places to play? Whether you want something small and casual where you can learn more about the game and practice your skills, or bigger, exciting tournaments where you'll see some of the most amazing cards in the game and meet talented Duelists from all over, there's a place to Duel for you. You can find out more at www.WannaDuel.com.

LOCAL TOURNAMENTS

Hobby League stores usually run local tournaments. They have everything from beginner events to tournaments full of skilled Duelists. Prizes depend on the tournament, but they're all awesome – like Champion Packs (exclusive, prize-only packs), booster packs, promo cards and other cool items. Ask at the stores where you play Hobby League to see what else they might offer.



YU-GI-OH! HOBBY LEAGUE

You can attend this event each week to keep building your skills and see all your friends while you earn cool promo cards and other prizes. Even if you only go every now and then, Hobby Leagues are a great place to start building your card collection through trading, too. Some Hobby Leagues have casual, open Dueling – you just show up and play against whoever you want. Others have small tournaments each week. You can win some great prizes – each month there's a new promo card, and you'll also have the chance to win Hobby League exclusive card sleeves, and even a Game Mat depicting some of the most exciting-looking monsters in Yu-Gi-Oh! Find your local Hobby League in the store finder at www.WannaDuel.com.

SNEAK PREVIEWS

When new booster sets are released, Duelists flock to the Sneak Preview to get the cards early! Sneak Previews are a lot of fun – instead of playing with the decks you've already built, you'll get five packs of the brand new booster, and you'll use those cards to build a deck and play against other Duelists. Sneak Previews are also super casual – just find five other Duelists and play them, and you'll be rewarded with a sixth pack! You can also win Yu-Gi-Oh! T-shirts. Sneak Previews are the best place to trade for new cards, and you'll meet plenty of new Duelists!

REGIONAL TOURNAMENTS

Regional tournaments are your ticket to the National Championship! They're bigger and last longer than local events, and are more serious about the rules. Once you've mastered the rules and perfected your deck, Regional tournaments are the place to test your skills!

SHONEN JUMP CHAMPIONSHIPS

Shonen Jump Championships are the showcase of Yu-Gi-Oh! events! These are big, exciting, action-packed events with something for everyone. There are hundreds of people to play, trade and just hang out with. The winners of the Shonen Jump tournaments take home amazingly rare and valuable prize cards, plus other cool stuff like laptops, Nintendo Wiis, iPods, even invitations to the Yu-Gi-Oh! National Championship!

YU-GI-OH! NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

This is the big one! Every summer, all the Duelists who've won invitations battle it out to be the best in the nation! In addition to a trip to the Yu-G-Oh! World Championship, winners at Nationals can get all kinds of prizes, including booster packs and electronic prizes.

YU-GI-OH! WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

Each year, the winners of National Championships from all over the world compete in the Yu-Gi-Oh! World Championship. This exclusive tournament has been held in many locations – from California in the United States to Tokyo, Japan. The winners will take home more than just the title of Yu-Gi-Oh! World Champion – they leave with some of the rarest, most exclusive promo cards in the entire game, along with memories of the most incredible Yu-Gi-Oh! experience ever.

How's that sound? No matter what your skill level or interest, there's a Yu-Gi-Oh! event for you! You can find Hobby Leagues, local tournaments and more at www.WannaDuel.com! So come out and Duel!

THE BEST PRIZES!

ONE OF THE BEST THINGS ABOUT PLAYING YU-GI-OH! IS THAT YOU CAN WIN ALL KINDS OF AWESOME PRIZES. CHECK IT OUT:

Champion Packs:

Local events reward you with Champion Packs – special packs you can't buy in a store. Your only chance at getting these cards is to play in local tournaments. These packs give you powerful cards for your decks, as well as foil versions of fan-favorite cards and brand-new cards found nowhere else.

Shonen Jump Prize Cards:

WEBKINZ & LIL'KINZ PRICE GUIDE & CHECKLIST

HOW TO USE THIS PRICE GUIDE

WHAT'S LISTED
All Webkinz products listed in the price guide are licensed by Ganz and carry a secondary market value.

WHAT THE COLUMNS MEAN
The LO and HI columns reflect current retail selling ranges. The HI column on the right generally represents the full retail selling price. The LO column on the left generally represents the lowest price one would expect to find with extensive shopping.

WHAT THE ARROWS MEAN
Up arrows denote prices that went up since the last issue. Down arrows denote prices that went down since the last issue. Arrows don't mean an item "going up" or "going down."

GRADING AND VALUES
All items in this Price Guide are based on NRMint to Mint condition. Damaged items are generally sold for 25 to 75 percent of Mint value. All values in this guide are for Webkinz with unused tags and codes.

1ST EDITIONS
Most 1st Edition Webkinz are missing the "W" on their paw. These generally sell for 20% to 50% more than later editions.

CURRENCY
The Price Guide is intended to reflect the entire North American market. All prices are in U.S. dollars.
